Our Student Spotlight

Did you guess who that trombone playing toddler was last month?

Alec Warner is a member of the Marching Band and is in his senior year. He is one of the Drumline Captains this season and is playing the quad drums.

Alec has been a part of the Marching Band for four years now, three of which have been with drumline. During his freshman season, he played baritone for the show Heliosphere. With an interest and need for percussionists, Alec decided to switch to Battery Percussion for his sophomore Marching Band season.

Aside from Marching Band, Alec participates in Jazz Band, Concert Band, and as the Lighting Director for Susquehannock Theatre. In his free time, he enjoys researching and engineering electrical ideas such as the light globes, which were used in last year's show.

Alec is looking forward to his final season and cannot wait to see the progress the band makes during competitions.
